

Join the journal Science for the winning presentations of the Science & SciLifeLab Prize for Young Scientists

Four internationally outstanding young scientists will be speaking about their research in one of the following categories: Genomics/Proteomics/Systems Biology, Developmental Biology, Molecular and Cellular Biology, Environmental Life Science.

December 9th: 10.00 – 11.45, Uppsala

Scientific presentation by the winners and SciLifeLab Uppsala scientists
Rudbecksalen, Rudbecklaboratoriet, Dag Hammarskjölds väg 20, Uppsala

December 10th: 9.00 – 11.30, Stockholm

Scientific presentation by the winners and SciLifeLab Stockholm scientists
Gardaulan, SMI, Nobels väg 18, Solna

More information about the program will be posted on www.scilifelab.se

About the competition

The journal Science and SciLifeLab have come together to recognize excellence amongst young researchers. The Science and SciLifeLab Prize for Young Scientists is a global prize established to celebrate and support young scientists at the start of their career. The grand prize winner of this global award will have his/her essay published in the journal Science and receive a prize of $25,000.

The winners of the Science & SciLifeLab Prize will be visiting Stockholm and Uppsala in December for an exciting scientific program and award ceremony. Find out more on www.scilifelab.se